this book addresses the apparent dislocation of the church and theology from the socio cultural mainstream and attempts to recover its counterpolitical voice it argues that early in ecclesiastical history the tradition s founding and constituent principles were betrayed by a complicity with the prevailing politics of sovereignty that has continued to this day following the contours of contemporary theologians who explain the dislocation in terms of a fall in early modernity an initial subsumption of transcendence by sovereignty is proposed the genealogy of this fall is then explored in four historical studies focusing on the theopolitical transformations of law violence and appeasement from their beginnings in the writings of eusebius of caesarea to their culmination in the commodification of life itself the trajectory is traced through seminal soteriological developments such as the crusade theology of pope innocent iii the inversion of the corpus verum and the corpus mysticum and the conjunction of sovereignty and capital in the mysterious currency of the bank of england the narrative culminates in the seemingly paradoxical concurrence of the politics of biopower and the so called century of the holy spirit drawing on a radical substratum intimated in the case studies the final section develops an innovative christological configuration of kenosis or what is termed kenarchy this provides a re imagining of the divine distinct from its implication with imperial sovereignty which could allow theology to make a more effective contemporary political intervention medieval legal and political thought encompasses the period from approximately 500 ce to 1500 ce the term medieval refers to the legal and political thought from the time of the late roman empire to that of the renaissance the legal and political thought of the middle ages is overwhelmingly characterized by the increasing role that religion played in influencing politics and law by the high middle ages we find the great theorists averroes maimonides and aquinas linking law to their respective religions of islam judaism and christianity this book argues that the so called dark ages had very significant ideas about the law especially how violence is to be contained which make this early medieval period anything but dark it suggests that the christianization and islamization of legal and political thought created almost as many problems as solutions to the increasingly diverse times that arose in the middle of the middle ages the book also shows that the late middle ages already held many of the most important legal and political ideas of the renaissance showing that there was no clear break from the medieval to the modern periods of legal and political thought of central importance is the way that the development of the idea of conscience made the natural law theories of the medieval times a robust set of ideas that is still felt quite strongly today
