norman bryson analyzes the origins history and logic of still life one of the most enduring forms of western painting the first essay is devoted to roman wall painting while in the second the author surveys a major segment in the history of still life from seventeenth century spanish painting to cubism the third essay tackles the controversial field of seventeenth century dutch still life bryson concludes in the final essay that the persisting tendency to downgrade the genre of still life is profoundly rooted in the historical oppression of women originally published in 1985 this book explores in four interwoven essays the many ways human life and built form interact and the place that professional designing takes in this interaction together the essays touch on a number of ideas the idea that our position in space relative to the thing we are designing determines the methods we apply when designing it the idea that designing is about making proposals and is therefore a social act first of all and the idea that agreements consensus and above all conventions shape the act of designing things independent of their creative qualities gordian röttich provides with his four essays on distinctive levels of international entrepreneurship an answer on some of the most essential challenges by shedding light on how social groups economic institutions and nations manage to overcome the challenges of internationalization and gain competitive advantages available for the first time in english li zehou s philosophical aesthetics interpret the historical origins and evolution of aesthetic experience and their significance to the intellectual emotional and spiritual growth of human beings although li s ideas have been debated in china for more than two decades his conversations with jane cauvet will now allow western students and philosophers to re encounter chinese and western conceptions of aesthetics and the way art shapes individuals societies technology and the future of humankind in his introduction herschel baker writes although romance the dominant genre of secular literature throughout the later middle ages has prompted floods of scholarship and speculation it still bristles with unanswered problems of origin development and even definition helaine newstead contributes malory and romance a bartlett giamatti spenser from magic to miracle norman rabkin the holy sinner and the confidence man illusion in shakespeare s romances and barbara k lewalski milton revaluations of romance these essays reveal mikhail bakhtin 1895 1975 known in the west largely through his studies of rabelais and dostoevsky as a philosopher of language a cultural historian and a major theoretician of the novel the dialogic imagination presents in superb english translation four selections from voprosy literatury i estetiki problems of literature and esthetics published in moscow in 1975 the volume also contains a lengthy introduction to bakhtin and his thought and a glossary of terminology bakhtin uses the category novel in a highly idiosyncratic way claiming for it vastly larger territory than has been traditionally accepted for him the novel is not so much a genre as it is a force novelness which he discusses in from the prehistory of novelistic discourse two essays epic and novel and forms of time and of the chronotope in the novel deal with literary history in bakhtin s own unorthodox way in the final essay he discusses literature and language in general which he sees as stratified constantly changing systems of subgenres dialects and fragmented languages in battle with one another
