The most famous source of ancient purple dye was the Tyrian purple, derived from the mucus of the Murex snail, a marine mollusk found along the Mediterranean coast. This dye was so precious that it was reserved for royalty, high-ranking officials, and the elite. The process of extracting Tyrian purple was labor-intensive and costly, which contributed to its association with sovereignty. As a result, purple garments were often worn solely by emperors, kings, and religious leaders, reinforcing the color's regal connotations. The rarity and expense of the dye made purple a symbol of divine authority and social status, a tradition that persisted through centuries.
